Day 6: Stand Up!

Goal:

Students will learn about diffusion of responsibility and discuss how they should play a role in protecting others.

Process:

1. Stage a “bullying scene” with two students in your classroom. Prearrange that one student will bully another in the beginning of class while you pretend to be distracted with another matter. Did anyone try and stop it? Why or why not?

2. Note and discuss students' reactions with the class.

3. Read and discuss the poem, First They Came for the Jews, with students.

4. Discuss any of the following topics:
   - Have you ever witnessed someone standing up for another person? What was the situation? What was the result of one person taking on another’s cause?
   - Have students think privately about a time they wished someone had stood up for someone else.
   - Why do people stand up for others? When are we most likely to take responsibility for the behavior of those around us? When are we least likely?
   - What famous people in history have “stood up” for those around them? How did they do this? What challenges did they face?

5. Discuss ways students would feel comfortable standing up against school violence and bullies. How is there power in numbers?
6. Have students write their own version of the First They Came for the Jews poem substituting their own lines. At the end, create a class poem by having each student read a line from their poem out loud to the class.

First They Came for the Jews

First they came for the Jews
and I did not speak out because I was not a Jew.

Then they came for the Communists
and I did not speak out because I was not a Communist.

Then they came for the trade unionists
and I did not speak out because I was not a trade unionist.

Then they came for me
and there was no one left
to speak out for me.
